Gist : Thou Formless One

The blind, deaf and unwise willful person does not admit his ignorance;

Mistaking it for milk, he goes on churning water.

He is looking for the Formless, the Boundless, at the conjunction of rivers;

He offers lights at the graveyards, cemeteries and the funeral places.

He looks for the all-pervading God in barren, waste lands;

He does not get tired of bowing before scriptures, and worshipping idols.

Man wastes all his life in search of God, yet fails to perceive Him;

Avtar says, nobody has ever realised God without the blessings of the True Master.

The Wonderful Feast

Early in the morning, Farmer Jones got up and said, "It is a beautiful morning. The sun is shining bright. The birds are singing, and I feel fine."

Then he went into the barn and gave his horse a great big breakfast.

"My", said the old horse. "What a wonderful feast I'm going to have."

He ate all he wanted and went to sleep. Then everything was quiet again.

A goat came into the barn. She looked at what was left of the horse's meal.

"My, oh, my," she said. "What a wonderful feast I'm going to have."

She ate all she wanted and left the barn.

— Kishore Daniel

Just then the hen came in looking for breakfast.

"Children, children," she called. "Look what a wonderful feast we are going to have."

In a moment the floor was covered with little chicks, having their breakfast.

All was quiet again in the barn after they left.

"Oh, my-oh, my-oh, my," whispered a little mouse, peeping out of his hole. "What a wonderful feast I'm going to have."

He crossed the floor to where the grains lay and took all he could to his house.

Then a busy old ant came into the barn. He picked up the last grain and took it away. "My, oh, my," said the ant. "What a wonderful feast I'm going to have." Every one was thankful that they have got a wonderful feast.

THE MAGICAL LION

Nandanvan had only upto 8th Standard School. So, the animals who wanted to pursue their studies further had to go to Madhuvan.

Nandu Rabbit too got admission to 9th class. He lived in Hostel alongwith some of his jungle inmates.

Last time when Nandu visited his jungle, he had got very upset to see that 2-3 foxes who had joined the jungle recently had made the life miserable. All the animals of the jungle were fed up with the indecencies of these foxes, Many a times, these foxes had even attacked the animals. Not only this, they had even kidnapped some of the animals.

One day, Nandu was enjoying a song on Radio.

Suddenly, he felt elated by a thought. Next day was a holiday. So he left for Nandanvan. On reaching there he found that the foxes were still dominating the jungle.

It was growing dark. All the three foxes started towards Rabbit's den as usual. As soon as they approached the den, they were bewildered to hear the lions roaring.

"It seems that the lion is approaching us."

"Yes! it seems to be. He already killed many rabbits."

"Let us run away and shelter in some other jungle. It will not be possible for us to continue our terror here any more,"

They were still counselling with each other, when they heard the lion roaring, louder than before. They felt as if the lion was nearing them.

All the three foxes took to their heels. The Rabbits too had heard the lion roaring. So, they had all gathered at one place. Just then they saw Nandu Rabbit coming towards them with a bag hanging in his shoulder.

"Nandu! where are you coming from at this odd hour alone? It is time for the foxes to be here. Even a lion has been here today. We heard him roaring," an old Rabbit said.

Nandu started laughing on hearing this. That lion is here in my bag, he said. Nandu then took out the tape-recorder from his bag and made showed it to all. Then he switched it on and them hear the lion's voice. All were astonished at this. One of them said; "It appears to be a magic then Nandu related them the whole story how he hid himself in the bushes and terrorised the foxes. Now they have left the jungle for ever and will never return. All the Rabbits praised Nandu for his successful plan.

All Because of My Hair

"You good for nothing fellow!" one slap.

"You naughty boy!" another slap. "You rascal!" a shower of slaps. I could see stars dancing at midday! The portraits of Kabir, Ghalib and Einstein hanging on the wall started swinging. I lost count of the slaps raining down on my clean shaven head and face. I wondered if I really deserved them. I was in class VIII and a boarder in a Delhi school. I was a good singer and there were hardly any school functions at which I did not recite a poem or sing a song.

For days and weeks now, we had been preparing for an important function. A very prominent figure was to preside, and so excitement ran high. The classrooms were cleaned and decorated, and charts and photographs fixed. Everybody was busy,

A poem was to be recited in honour of the distinguished guest. And who else but I could be asked to recite it?

I didn't tell you that my hair was rather long in those days.

Sometimes my parents would be angry with me on that account. But when I was sent to the hostel, I thought I would have the freedom of growing my hair as long as I wanted.

The situation, I realised very soon, was worse at the hostel. The warden, a venerable old fellow, was stricter than my parents. He was an artist by profession and quite unnaturally insisted on everything being neat and clean and in perfect order. So, very soon, my hair became the bone of contention between us.

Every Sunday, an old barber whom we called Khalifaji', came to the hostel. So the whole morning I spent playing hide-and-seek with the warden. However, every fourth or fifth week I'd be caught and handed over to Khalifaji. He himself shuddered at the mere mention of my name because I was really troublesome. His hands quivered when he touched my head.

That was just too bad, because I wanted to appear on stage with my crowning glory untrimmed.

But I couldn't escape the warden's clutches and was duly sent to Khalifaji. The dreaded moment had come. I had to decide there and then whether to submit to his threats or revolt.

The devil must have egged me on. I was determined to take revenge and settle all accounts, old and new. I presented my head to Khalifaji humbly. I even asked him to shave off my head completely! But of course he wouldn't take me seriously. At last, when I insisted, he applied water on my head. Then before picking up the razor he asked me for the last time. "Are you sure you want your head to be clean-shaven?" It took great effort on my part to convince him. Then, with trembling hands, he put the razor to my hair. It took ten minutes to shave my head thrice. There wasn't the trace of a hair on my shining scalp, I made Khalifaji trim my eyebrows too. Then I carefully applied oil to give it a better shine.

I went back to my room, put on a pair of shorts and wrapped a towel round my shoulders. Then I came out of the hostel looking victorious. My companions burst out laughing and clapped as they followed me. I headed the procession, looking like a Buddhist monk.

The warden was busy decorating a classroom. The boisterous procession of boys, yelling, laughing and clapping, passed by. The warden ran out of the classroom and stood stunned as he watched. He could not believe his eyes. He examined me from head to foot.

That's when the blows started raining down on me. I had rather anticipated them and now that I think of it—deserved them too.

I was of course not permitted to appear on stage the next day. But worse still I had to remain with my month-like appearance for many months. After that nobody ever asked me to have a haircut again, and today I am the sole master of my head and hair!

SWAMI VIVEKANANDA

Swami Vivekananda was born on 12th January, 1863 in Kolkata. His parents called him Narendra. His father, Vishwanath Datta, was a successful lawyer and his mother, Bhuvaneshwari Devi, was a religious lady.

During his school days, he excelled in music, gymnastics and studies. By the time, he graduated from Calcutta University, he had acquired a vast knowledge of Western philosophy and history. Instead of worldly affairs, he was more drawn towards spiritualism.

One day, he went to meet Sri Ramakrishna and straightaway asked him, “Have you seen God ?” Sri Ramakrishna replied, “Yes, I have. I see Him as clearly as I see you.” Thus, the true Master blessed his disciple Vivekananda with God realisation. Swami Vivekananda attended World’s Parliament of Religions held in Chicago in 1893. His address began with the words ‘My dear sisters and brothers of America’. This thrilled the audience as this greeting contained the spirit of Universal Brotherhood. His inspiring speech made him famous as an ‘Orator by divine right’ and ‘Messenger of Indian wisdom to the Western world’. After the Parliament, he spent more than three years spreading Vedanta in America and England.

After coming back to India, he founded Ramakrishna Mission in 1897. This organisation worked for the spread

School Life

The best part of one's life
Yes, it is school life!
Starting with school as a little kid
I remember it all. Oh! Yes I do.....
All the tensions and worries fade away
As I reach my school everyday.
The pressure of studies is always on
But with the friends, it fades away and is gone...
The scolding of the teachers, Oh my!
Makes us jump out of the seats and cry.
The bunking, the PT periods and all the fun
Life without school is just not done.
I wonder what will happen,
when from the school I'll pass out
The memories will stay with me throughout.

—Sukhvit Vilaskhampir

of education and uplift of the poor masses. It also ran various hospitals, schools and colleges and conducted relief work for the victims of calamities.

In 1899, he went to the West on a second visit to inspire and guide people on spirituality. He conducted hundreds of public and private lectures to spread awareness about the Hindu philosophy. His call to the world was 'Awake, arise, and stop not till the goal is reached.'

He passed away at the age of thirty-nine years on July 4, 1902 in India. His birthday is celebrated as 'National Youth Day' in India.

The Kind Liar

Once the ruler of Kittoor sentenced a criminal to life imprisonment. The criminal Pandu Shetty spoke a local dialect, which the king did not understand. A drowning man no longer cares for rain or sunshine. He knows that there is no hope for him. So Pandu Shetty cursed the king to his heart's content. He knew that he had no hope of escaping life imprisonment.

The king asked one of his ministers Ramaradhya who knew that tongue, to explain what the criminal was saying. The minister was a good and kind man. He thought to himself thus, "If I tell him the truth, the king will have Pandu Shetty beaten up." So the minister told the king, "Oh King! Pandu Shetty is saying that God blesses only those who control their anger and who will pardon other's mistakes." The King heard this with pleasure. He felt pity for the criminal. So Pandu Shetty was pardoned and set free.

While all this was going on, another minister named Purnaiya was standing aside, watching the scene. He did not like the first minister Ramaradhya, who had protected Pandu Shetty. Purnaiya was very happy to have the chance of insulting Ramaradhya before the king. He spoke out: "Oh King! I also know the tongue spoken by the criminal. Minister Ramaradhya has told you a lie. Pandu Shetty is showering curses on you."

The king listened to the versions of his two ministers, and then said, "Ramaradhya told me a lie out of kindness for the criminal. But Purnaiya is telling me the truth out of jealousy for Ramaradhya. So I feel that Ramaradhya's lie is more praiseworthy than Purnaiya's truth. I don't appreciate this truth, inspired by jealousy."

Have Both Your Hands Free

Once a woman went to see her weaver friend. The weaver, who had been spinning different kinds of silk thread, was very happy to see her friend and said to her: "Friend, I can't tell you how happy I am to see you. Let me get you some refreshments." She left the room. The woman looked at the threads of different colours and was tempted. She hid a bundle of thread under one arm. The weaver returned presently with the refreshments, and began to feed her guest with great enthusiasm. But, looking at the thread, she realised that her friend, had taken a bundle. Hitting upon a plan to get it back she said, "Friend, it is so long since I have seen you. This is a day of great joy for me. I feel very much like asking you to dance with me." The friend said, "Sister, I am feeling very happy too." So the two friends began to dance together. When the weaver saw that her friend danced without raising her hands, she said, "Friend let us dance with both hands raised. This is a day of great joy." But the guest pressed one arm to her side and danced raising only the other. The weaver said "How is this, friend? Why should you dance with only one hand raised? Dance with me raising both hands. Look at me. See how I dance with both hands raised," But the guest still pressed one arm to her side. She danced with the other hand raised and said with a smile, "This is all I know of dancing!"

Don't press your arm to your side. Have both your hands free. Be not afraid of anything. Accept both the Absolute and the Relative. ■

Dhum Dhum Arre Pappu what is this.....Run away dear, lets run away.

Yes brother Bhiku, you are right.

Dear, even I am feeling scared, but at least lets see what is he saying!

Brother I am really scared

Yes, may be you are right. Its better to run away, we will have a look at them later. Otherwise also if Principal Sir comes here, it will mean trouble for us.

Yes brother, they have a weapon in there hand.

Our National Flag

Our national flag—saffron,
white and green Is the most beautiful thing
I have ever seen
How it dances and flutters high
Atop the highest peak, toughing the sky.
And when I sing our national song
I feel really proud that I belong
To a nation so great and large
"I am an Indian." I say with pride.

—Arnav Singh Grover

Flowers

A jasmine's like a little Star,
Marigolds twinkle from afar
Roses curl up like shells
Lilies often look like bells
But the lotus like their king,
Stand apart at the water's brink

LAUGHING TIME

— Sakshi Gulati, Chandigarh

Conductor : "Children under 12 may ride at half fare.
How old are you little girl?"

Girl : "Eleven"

Conductor : "And when will you be 12?"

Girl : "As soon as I get off the bus."

Johnson : "Why did you put your hand in my pocket?"

Pickpocket : "Sorry Sir, I am so absent minded. I used to have a pair of pants just like those you are wearing."

Teacher : "Jacky, if your father earned Rs. 5000/- and gave your mother half, what would she have?"

Jacky : "Heart failure."

Pinkoo : (To Tinkoo) Friend, why do you prefer inner material of Samosa?

Tinkoo : Because the doctor has advised me not to take any outside item.

Customer: (to milkman) — Why did you come late today?

Milkman: Sorry Madam! we got water in our taps very late.

Netaji : You cast you vote in my favour and I will convert your village into heaven.

Villagers : Netaji, we are not yet interested in heaven.
We have still to live here.

Teacher : What is the easiest way to save milk from getting spoiled?

Student : Let it remain inside the cow itself,

Milk Man : Madam! see? Our milk is very thick today.

Madam : I suppose that you are also not getting water in your tap these days.

Burglar: (to his lawyer, after his case has been heard).
Thanks for getting me off. But I cannot pay you until I do my next job.

Let's now vote democratically," said a boss to his workers.
"Whoever agrees to my proposal raise your hand.
Whoever does not agree to it, say in a loud voice, I resign"

Hearing-aid

- ▶▶ A man realised he needed to purchase a hearing aid, but he felt unwilling to spend much money. "How much do they run?" he asked the clerk.
- ▶▶ "That depends," said the salesman. "They run from $2 to $2,000." "Let's see the $2 model," he said.
- ▶▶ The clerk put the device around the man's neck. "You just stick this button in your ear and run this little string down to your pocket," he instructed.

- ▶▶ "How does it work?" the customer asked.
- ▶▶ "For $2 it doesn't work," the salesman replied. "But when people see it on you, they'll talk louder!"

Nelson Mandela

Nelson Mandela was born at Qunu, near Umtata on 18 July 1918. In 1952 Mandela and Tambo opened the first Black Law firm in South Africa. The Transvaal Law Society tried to have it closed down, although this was blocked by the South African Supreme Court.

1962 Mandela had been arrested and sentenced to life imprisonment in the notorious Robben Island prison. However on 10 May 1994 Nelson Mandela was inaugurated as the first democratically elected State President of South Africa on and was President until June 1999. As president, Mandela presided over the transition from minority rule and apartheid. His advocacy of reconciliation led to international acclaim and importantly the trust of the White African population.

In April 2007 his grandson Mandla Mandela became head of the Mvezo Traditional Council at a ceremony at the Mvezo Great Place.

He died at his home in Johannesburg on 5 December 2013.

Also hailed as Gandhi of Africa, his biggest contribution was for the cause of Apartheid wherein he advocated protection of rights of black people.

Have Your Say

I have read thrice your editorial "Love People, Use Things". It is really remarkable.

Now it is the right suggestion to "Love People" to get true happiness. Other articles Especially, 'Save Parents from Addiction' is very very useful. "Benefits of Lemon" is nice article to maintain good health.. 'Wonder Kids from UP' ' will encourage children to become intelligent.

Brief History "Jesus Christ" gives readers a good lesson to love one another. Short stories 'Effect of Superstitious' and 'The Four Wives' are interesting and useful.

Please print more poems for children as there is only one poem in December 2013 issue.

—Sagar, Alwar (Raj.)

Swami Vivekanand Quotes

★ "I do not want to get material life, do not want the sense-life, but something higher." That is renunciation. Then, by the power of meditation, undo the mischief that has been done.

★ "Comfort" is no test of truth; on the contrary, truth is often far from being "comfortable."

★ "Face the brutes." That is a lesson for all life—face the terrible, face it boldly. Like the monkeys, the hardships of life fall back when we cease to flee before them.

★ Never be weak, you have infinite strength within you.
